

Internet Search

A search engine is a site on the Internet that helps you search for information by subject, name or simply by the words you type in. Typically, they do not contain information themselves, but rather can direct you to a number of places where you can go to find what you need.

There are many kinds of search engines. You may already have a favorite one you use. Today we will focus on the following five search engines:

www.ask.com   www.yahooligans.com   www.dogpile.com
www.about.com   www.lycos.com

Using proper technology and Internet procedures, netiquette you and a partner must find as many of the following names as you can using the above search engines. Then using the information you find, complete the work sheet on the back of this paper. If you've used other search engines in the past, you may wish to share them with your classmates.

*Abraham Baldwin   Benjamin Franklin   John Blair   Pierce Butler
Hugh Williamson   Jonathon Dayton   Roger Sherman   William Few
John Langdon   James Madison Jr.   Nicholas Gilman   Rufus King
